

IN THE STUDENT SUPREME COURT IN AND FOR FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

SURGE FSU,

No.: 23-SP-SC-07

Appellant,

v.

OMER TURKOMER,
in his capacity as General Counsel for FORWARD FSU,

Appellee.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE CEVERE delivers the unanimous opinion of the Court.

SYLLABUS

This action was brought before this court on appeal from 2023-EC-SPR-07 wherein the Elections Commission determined that the evidence presented clearly and convincingly demonstrated that Appellant was in violation of Florida State University Student Body Statutes § 709.1(C) by placing a freestanding sign in an unauthorized location.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

On March 1, 2023 at about 11:47 am, a member of Appellee’s campus political party found evidence that Appellant’s campus political party had placed a freestanding cardboard cut-out featuring the Appellant’s candidates for Student Body President, Student Body Vice President, and Student Body Treasurer in an unauthorized location. This member of Appellee’s campus political party videotaped the scene and submitted the video along with a screenshot. The video and screenshot were properly authenticated by stipulation of the parties, but did not show explicit evidence that the cardboard cutout was freestanding.

There were two possibilities as to which external structures kept the cardboard cutout from falling over. First was a truck behind the cutout on one side. The other was a cardboard box located behind the other side of the cutout.

As to the truck, the video provided included no direct indication that it was supportive of the cardboard sign to the extent necessary that it was keeping it from falling. The photograph likewise provided no indication that the cardboard sign was being as support. Notably, the box’s flaps cast a distinct shadow onto the box itself.

Crucially, video and screenshot indicate that the curb, where the truck was parked, was substantially lower than the sidewalk upon which the cardboard cutout was found. Likewise, the cardboard box in the photograph was placed upon the heightened sidewalk. The cardboard cutout showed no indication of any lilt which would have been indicative of being supported by both the truck and the box.

Of note is that the screenshot submitted was digitally altered to zoom in on the sign and surrounding environment. While an alteration of sorts, that the screenshot was a digital enlargement has no impact on its contents in relation to this Court's findings.

ISSUES

1. Was the case presented to the Elections Commission sufficiently persuasive so as to satisfy the clear and convincing evidentiary standard?
2. Does the FSU Posting Policy's language in respect to freestanding signs apply to matters sued upon under § 709.1(C) of the Elections Code?
3. Did the Election Commission err in their designation of the cardboard cutout as a freestanding sign pursuant to FSU Posting Policy 2.0131?

HOLDINGS

1. Yes, the Elections Commission was presented with sufficiently persuasive evidence to satisfy the clear and convincing standard.

2. Yes, due to the express delegations of authority represented by the language of § 709.1(C) to the Oglesby Union Policy and to the University's own regulations regarding freestanding signs, FSU Posting Policy 2.0131 is applicable to this case.
3. Yes, the Election Commission did err in their designation of the sign as "freestanding." However, this error was harmless and did not impact the resolution of this case in any meaningful fashion.

OPINION

We now turn to an analysis of how the Court made the conclusions of law as enumerated above.

THE BURDEN WAS MET

Evidence is "clear and convincing" when it is "precise, explicit, lacking in confusion, and of such weight that it produces a firm belief or conviction, without hesitation, of the matter at issue." In re Standard Jury Instructions In Civ. Cases-Rep. No. 09-01 (Reorganization of the Civ. Jury Instructions), 35 So. 3d 666, 726 (Fla. 2010). As indicated in Appellee's Exhibits, the video and screenshot lack any indication that the cardboard cutout is being supported by any external structure.

Rather, analysis of the difference in height between the curb where the truck was parked and the sidewalk where cardboard box was placed makes it exceedingly unlikely that the cutout was being supported by either or both. Moreover, the shadows cast by the flaps on the box indicate the absence of any pressure which would be applied if the cardboard cutout were being supported by the box.

Again, in no way, shape, or form does the evidence presented indicate that the cardboard cutout was being supported by the truck or the box. The preceding in mind, this Court finds that the Election Commission correctly decided this case by the correct evidentiary standard.

FSU'S POSTING POLICY APPLIES

Appellant argued, at length, that it would be improper for the Court to apply FSU Posting Policy 2.0131 to this case. This argument asserted that the Posting Policy was too far removed from the Oglesby Union Policy to have any binding affect. This Court disagrees. We are unpersuaded that the Oglesby Union Policy's delegation to the Posting Policy renders it null.

The binding effect of the Posting Policy is a result of multi-level delegation. § 709.1(C) contains an express delegation to the Oglesby Union Policy. Fla. St. U. Student Body Stat. § 709.1(C) (“[a]ll material and activity in the Union and on FSU campuses shall be in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Oglesby Union Policy”) (emphasis supplied).

This sort of delegation to an additional and external source of authority is standard fare, not only in the law, but also in our Student Government Association's governing documents. See id. at § 806.4(C) (“[a]ll monies shall be spent in accordance with the Finance Code and A&S Fee Guidelines”); id. at § 808.3(C)(3)(a)(ix) (requiring the Chair of the Sports Club Distribution Council to abide by the SGA Senate Rules of Procedure); id. at § 907.3(B)(1)(a) (requiring Executive Officers of the Inter-Residence Halls Council to abide by their own by-laws).

Next, we turn to the Oglesby Union's delegation of authority to the FSU Posting Policy, which does so in two separate provisions. See THE OGLESBY UNION POLICY MANUAL (2016-17) at 35 & 38. Notably, the Union policy provides that “all organizations must adhere to the Florida State University Posting Policy.” Id. at 35. For good measure, the Union policy includes the entire policy in an addendum to the document. See id. at SECTION VII: ADDENDUMS.

While the face of Appellant’s argument - that the Union policy is absent an explicit delegation of authority to the Posting Policy - seemed to have merit, upon review of that policy it became abundantly clear that not only was this policy applicable, but also this Court has limited jurisdiction over its terms in respect to any policy regarding freestanding signs.

In fact, FSU’s Posting Policy is explicit about who is permitted to alter any of its regulations which apply to freestanding signs, and it is not this Court nor the SGA Senate. See FSU Posting Policy 2.0131(11)(d). Rather, only a special committee appointed by the University President or their designee may “update” the locations as to where freestanding signs are permitted. It so follows that even though the posting policy is silent about where freestanding signs are expressly not permitted, this Court lacks the authority to recognize any locations not explicitly mentioned as permissible within the policy, full stop.

Hence, this Court rejects Appellant’s arguments on this issue. As long as § 709.1(C) contains an express delegation to the Union policy and the Union policy delegates authority in a fashion that impacts all organizations, the Posting Policy and its provisions are to be read as if it were part of the Election Code itself.

While this Court lacks authority to add locations where freestanding signs are permitted under the posting policy, it does not prevent this Court from addressing the plain meaning of freestanding to be applied by subsequent Election Commissions and Courts of our Student Government Association.

THE PLAIN MEANING OF “FREESTANDING”

The relevant opinion from the Election Commission asserts that a sign is “freestanding” when it “stands alone without the need for interference by another party.” See 2023-EC-SPR-8 at 6. The Court rejects this definition and replaces it with the following: a sign is freestanding when it is unsupported by any other structure. Further, the Court rejects the Election Commission’s analysis that if a sign was once “freestanding,” it must always be classified as such in an analysis of FSU’s Posting Policy.

Reasoning by analogy regarding what it means to be freestanding, consider a felled Kapok tree of the Amazon rainforest canopy. These trees stand nearly 200 feet tall, unsupported by any other structure. Once felled, however, the Kapok tree cannot become upright without the assistance of heavy machinery. It would be wrong to consider it to be capable of being a “freestanding” tree.

However, if the Election Commission’s opinion – which essentially posits that if a sign was once freestanding it remains as such despite any damage it may incur – is applied to this felled tree, then somehow a felled tree is simultaneously prone on the ground and “freestanding.”

Clearly, one cannot be dependent upon heavy machinery for movement and be considered “standing” in any capacity which would indicate freedom of movement or the ability to withstand gravity absent help from an external structure. Hence, the definition of “freestanding” as put forth by the Election Commission is clearly erroneous. However, this definitional error has no impact on the merits of the case, which we hold was correctly decided by the lower tribunal.

CONCLUSION

Having found no substantive error by the Election Commission, the lower tribunal’s finding of responsibility in 2023-EC-SPR-07 is AFFIRMED. The Elections Commission is hereby ordered to enforce the collection of the penalty levied against Appellant in conjunction with any other penalties so levied after the resolution of proceedings in all subsequent matters before the Elections Commission and this Court related to the Spring 2023 SGA elections.
