REVIEW OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Mathesie, J. for the Court

Published September 24, 2021

Pursuant to Student Body Statutes, the Supreme Court is required to review any proposed constitutional amendment for its adequacy and fairness to “ensure that the language of the statement adequately and fairly reflects the intent of the ballot proposal.” SGA Stat. 506 (B)2. The purpose of the Court’s review is to, “ensure that all provisions voted on by students are fair and not deceptive in terms of the provision’s language, and do not violate the Student Body Statutes, the Student Body Constitution, the Board of Governors Regulations, University Policy or Regulation, or any local, state, or federal law.” SGA Stat. 506 (A)2.

On September 14, 2021, a petition to certify proposed amendments to the Student Body Constitution for the Fall 2021 election were properly submitted to the Court for review. The amendment called for the correction of registration classifications to be in accordance with the current registrar policies, as well as increasing the allocation of graduate student Activities and Service fees (“A & S fees”) from thirty percent to fifty percent. The Court advises that there is nothing which facially violates a federal, state, or local law such that these Proposed Constitutional Amendments should be withheld from the ballot, and that the statements of intent accompanying the proposed amendments are fair and adequate.

REASONING

In reaching this decision, the Court looked to the language of the SGA Statute 506 (“Court Review Act”) and the language of Article VI Section 1 of the Student Body Constitution. The Court Review Act requires that all proposed constitutional amendments and referenda (“provisions”) be submitted to the Supreme Court for review. The Court’s review is limited to an advisory opinion.

There is a distinct difference in language throughout the Court Review Act. The Title and Purpose Section emphasizes the importance of ensuring the provision’s language is “fair and not deceptive language” for it to be placed on the ballot. While chapter 506(B)(2) requires that all Statements of Intent be reviewed by the Court to ensure that they adequately and fairly represent the accompanying proposed provision.

Proposed Amendment

Viewing the provision and the Statement of Intent in light of the statute, the Court finds that the intent of the ballot proposal is both fair and adequate. The intent of the ballot proposal “corrects the registration classifications to be in accordance with current policy and increased the allocation of graduate student Activities and Services fees to fifty percent of their annual yield.” See Student Senate Proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 10, <https://sga.fsu.edu/elections/minutes/73rd.ConstitutionalAmendment10.pdf>, at 1. No ambiguous language is used within the ballot proposal, and the language cannot be seen as “deceptive” because the sole intent is clearly set forth.

CONCLUSION

Nothing in this Advisory Opinion should be read or construed to favor a position either for or against the proposed amendments. The Court only advises that there is nothing which facially violates nor conflicts with any known federal, state, or local law such that these Proposed Constitutional Amendments should be withheld from the ballot, and that the statements of intent accompanying the proposed amendments are fair and adequate.
